

CASCO

25 November 2016, London, United Kingdom

Save the date!

Supporting the reduction of insurance losses

The role of standards

When : Friday, 25 November 2016,
(09:00-13:00)

Where : London, United Kingdom
(venue to be confirmed)

Join us in the City of London where we explore the role and benefit of standards in managing risk for the insurance industry.

Hosted by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO), this half day workshop will bring together insurance industry experts to debate pressing issues such as the impact of disruptive technologies and insurability, cities and insurability, and Big data.

The event will be facilitated by, Anthony Hilton, senior commentator for both the Evening Standard and The Independent and former business editor of the Evening Standard.

Registration and more details will be available from the official workshop website as of end of August.

For further information contact:
koroleva@iso.org